Title: Delivery of Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy (HBOT).

Description: The HSE hereby invites suitably qualified and experienced service providers to submit tenders for the provision of Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy (HBOT), in the greater Dublin area. St Luke's Radiation Oncology Network (SLRON) established in 2010, operates from three Dublin locations – St Luke's Hospital Rathgar and St Luke's Radiation Oncology Centres on the campuses of St James's and Beaumont Hospitals. The Network provides a full range of world class treatments including a comprehensive VMAT programme, Intra-cranial Stereotactic (SRS), Extra-cranial Stereotactic (SBRT), Total Body Irradiation (TBI) and the national paediatric radiation oncology service. There is also a comprehensive brachytherapy service provided including both prostate seeds and ocular brachytherapy. Currently there are 14 linear accelerators within the Network, 4 in each of the centres at Beaumont Centre and St James's Centre, and 6 on the Rathgar site. There are 2 CT scanners per centre. Both St. James and Beaumont centres have an MRI unit. St Luke's hospital houses the brachytherapy and superficial units. St Luke's Radiation Oncology Network (SLRON) has a long history of involvement in clinical trials, works very closely with Clinical Trials Ireland (formally ICORG), and is an integral part of the Irish Radiation Oncology Radiation Group (IRORG). St Luke's Radiation Oncology Network (SLRON) serves patients primarily from the Dublin East, Dublin Midlands and Dublin North East regions. Referrals are also received on a wider basis from around the country for the specialist services offered
